

Visiting Educator Profile

Madge Nanney

District Resource Science Teacher
Mandarin Middle School
Jacksonville, FL

Bio

Madge is a district resource science teacher in Jacksonville, Florida. Her responsibilities include curriculum development and testing, conducting school-based science content workshops, and conducting district-level workshops for new teachers. She is also involved in several U.S. Department of Education national research grants, and has presented at district-wide, state-wide, and national science workshops and conventions. Madge is also involved with nationwide professional development programs. As a MESSENGER Educator Fellow she has thus far trained 120 teachers across the nation on Solar System lessons in support of NASA's MESSENGER mission to Mercury.